PROFILE SUMMARY

Applied statistician and epidemiologist with several years of experience applying computer-intensive methods based in counterfactual causal inference to large databases. I have many years of international and intercultural experience, and some teaching, consultancy and management experience. My focus in the past few years has been on implementation and extension of the parametric g-formula, a highly flexible method used in both social and medical science for modelling dynamic treatment regimes. I have an emerging interest in Bayesian estimation and in machine learning methods.
